

Museum Essentials: Working with Collections

William Tregaskes transcript

My name is William Tregaskas and I am Museum Coordinator Cynon Valley museum and I also run Front of House in Museums. Bravery with collections is contemporary collecting, is being able to collect stuff which is around today and thinking about that. It is also about collecting stuff or getting rid of stuff which is not relevant which we've realised doesn't represent our audience it doesn't represent museums. If we have too many of something and that will impact our future collections, then we have to think about changing it, revising it and think about the future rather than just the past.
